My Story

At 43, I was diagnosed with breast cancer. It was a moment in which fear came upon my mind, body, and spirit. With three sons, a husband, and our ministry, I did not have time for cancer in my life. After a journey of diagnosis, surgery, and recovery my life was changed forever.

Today, I am cancer free, but my journey continues. During my battle with cancer, it became very evident that God's desire for me was to get involved and help others.

In 2009, Hope for the Journey, Inc. was founded. Since then we've developed support groups and helped over 300 individuals in West Georgia. Many are patients trying to understand their diagnosis, while others are family members looking for ways to help their loved one.

As a founding principle of our organization, we wish to give hope because no woman should have to face breast cancer alone. We welcome, with gratitude, the opportunity to present our program to your church or civic group. To learn more, visit us online.
